Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from The Number and Rosters of the Two Armies in the Civil War In this new era of universal devotion to the interests of our country. I am reluctant to revive the controversies of the past or to recall the victories or defeats of the Civil War. There is a subject, however, that has not received the attention from our military critics and writers at the North or South which its importance merits. I shall take the liberty, therefore, of considering briefly The Numbers and Rosters of the two Armies in the Civil War. The veterans of the Civil War, Federal and Confederate, are commending our able Secretary of War for his efforts to obtain the names, numbers, and full enrollment of the soldiers of the Confederacy. These records are necessary to complete the official history of the war, and to give just recognition to the American soldiers of the South. We have had very meager and indefinite figures by which to compare the number of enlistments and the magnitude of the two armies, Federal and Confederate, in the great conflict. Unfavorable comparisons and contrasts are frequently suggested as to the number of soldiers engaged upon each side, but I believe when the official rolls and figures are placed on the same basis and finally reported and compared, there will be no room for contrasting criticism as to the magnitude of the two armies, or as to the courage, the prowess, or generalship of the American soldiers from the North or the South. Fortunately the names and full enrollment of the union forces are complete. The official figures, embracing the entire rolls, the enlistments and re-enlistments...
