Marshall The bitter and vengeful spirit in which I am assailed by the Hon. Judge Scott and his son, Robert E. Scott, in their joint reply to the pamphlet of M. P. Brooke, Esquire, compels me to appear before the public in defence of my own conduct, and character. Except in an extreme case, where great and extended mischief, which can be reached in no other way, has been effected, I do not think that individuals are justified in obtruding their private grievances upon the public. The Judicial tribunals of our country, in most cases, furnish a more appropriate redress, or, a resort to those individual remedies above and beyond the control of all law, save public opinion, is far more congenial to an offended and outraged spirit. But, in the present instance, there is no competent redress for the injury sustained, except in an appeal to the public, before whom I have been arraigned by...
