It will be necessary that you first be sworn, Mr. Lewis. (Hon. David J. Lewis was thereupon duly sworn by the chairman.) The Chairman. You are a Member of the House of Representatives, are you not, Mr. Lewis? Mr. Lewis. Yes. The Chairman. Representing the sixth district of Maryland? Mr. Lewis. Yes, sir. Gentlemen of the committee, the country owes you its emphatic approval for giving your already overburdened time and energies to the subject of packet and express transportation. It is probably exactly correct to say that the subject has never received in this country a thorough canvass; and I regard the circumstances of the investigation before this body as especially propitious. I say this because when this committee announces the conclusions...
